What motions are used in debate in order?

1. Motion to Open Debate
2. Motion to Set the Agenda
3. Motion to Open the Speaker's List
4. Motion to Set the Speaker's Time
5. Motion to be Added to the Speaker's List

Review!

What is a moderated caucus?

- Stay in seats
- Classroom-style
- Chair calls on one person at a time
- Conversation-like

Review!

How do you motion for a moderated caucus?

Motion for a moderated caucus for x minutes with a speaking time of y to discuss z.

Review!

Why may a moderated caucus be used?

- To focus on a subtopic
- Once most everyone wishing to speak on the speaker's list has done so
- To get away from redundancy

What is an unmoderated caucus?

- Open debate setting
 - Delegates get up from their seats and talk with different delegates around the room
- Unmods are used:
 - To discuss solutions more in depth with specific people
 - To form blocs
 - To start resolutions and working papers (you will learn about resolutions later on)

Motioning for an unmod.

Motion for an unmoderated caucus [to discuss X] for Y minutes

- X is only used by some chairs that will ask you to specify why you want an unmod., not truly necessary
- Y refers to the total amount of time
 - Usually ranges from 5 to 15 minutes

Some key things to know:

- Passing notes is another way of talking to specific delegates, but do not take advantage of this privilege!
- Bloc: a combination of nations sharing the same ideas on a topic
- The order of debate will typically be:
 - Speaker's List → Mod → Unmod
 - Once in mods and unmods (which will occur frequently on and off), speaker's list typically becomes less common when working paper's are underway
